Retail Market Trends

With all COVID restrictions lifted in Michigan late in the second quarter, the retail sector of the market is gaining momentum. However, that momentum is being hindered by a lack of employees. Help wanted signs have become fixtures outside of many businesses up and down the retail corridors throughout West Michigan. Retail businesses, in many cases, are offering more than minimum wage and signing bonuses to attract much needed help. Some restaurants are still doing take-out only or have very limited hours because they don't have the staff to accommodate consumer demand.

The good news is that leasing activity in our market is up. The demand for smaller shop space has picked up considerably over the past month. West Michigan is also seeing national retailers enter our market for the first time. Whole Foods is under construction on 28th St SE across from Woodland Mall. Ross Dress for Less is currently looking at sites in Grand Rapids for the first time. Other retailers, such as Tropical Smoothie Café and B2 Outlet Stores, are looking to expand within our market.

The 45,000 SF former Toys R US on Alpine recently sold and is being considered by several retailers. Other big box space in our market has been sold, and in some cases is being repurposed. For instance, the Shops at West Shore in Holland is welcoming Grand Rapids Community College into the 50,000 SF former JC Penney's space.

Quality, Class A space in the most prominent retail corridors is difficult to find. The spaces that are available are still commanding pre-COVID lease rates. We expect the momentum in the West Michigan retail sector to continue to build through the remainder of the year, but will be dependent somewhat on the ability of business owners to fill open positions.
